¹Scratch Cards RTP is 89.25%. This is not statistically significant.

²Roulette Multiplayer Games RTP is 83.80%. This is not statistically significant, results vary around expected RTP over the last few quarters.

³Board Games RTP is 79.87%. Multiple games possibly have different RTPs; RTP consistently around 80%, so probably low RTP games (~80%) – in this case they appear to be performing normally. Insufficient history to confirm average RTP.

¹Scratch Cards RTP is greater than 100%. Game 2501 appears to have won the highest prize during June 2018, so this result, the combined results for game 2501 over 3 months, and the total for all scratch games in 3 months show above typical values. Previous scratch card combined 3 month RTPs show no previous fault. Conclusion is that the game(s) are performing normally, and that the highest prize has been won in game 2501 during June 2018 which has skewed game stats. We recommend monitoring the game in the next period for any duplication of this result (which would be statistically unlikely).

¹ iTech Labs has chosen a 95% confidence measure for 'statistical significance'. Based on this measure, statistically significant variations would be expected to appear 5% of the time without indicating any serious problem with RTPs. iTech Labs recommends games with statistically significant variations are reviewed again during the next audit to verify that the same variations are not recurring, which may then indicate a problem.
